

The Political Economy Of Contemporary Autocracy

The persistence of autocratic regimes in the context of modern societies creates significant challenges for social science theory and empirical research. The panelists will address these challenges in the context of their own research, highlighting emerging areas of research across social science disciplines.

A panel discussion featuring:

Professor Scott Gehlbach

Political Science, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Professor Armando Razo

Political Science, Indiana University

Professor Konstantin Sonin

Harris School of Public Policy Studies, University of Chicago

Friday March 24, 2017

11 am–1 pm

Ostrom Workshop

513 N. Park Avenue

Sponsored by:

The Russian Studies Workshop at IU with generous support from the Carnegie Corporation of New York, Ostrom Workshop, World Politics Research Group, and The Department of Political Science.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY
FULFILLING the PROMISE

@RSW_IU

facebook.com/RSWIU