

CYBERSECURITY AND INTERNET GOVERNANCE SPEAKER SERIES

The Net Neutrality Battle: What it is About and What it Means to You

PANELISTS:

Barbara Cherry, Media School

Matt Pierce, Media School; Indiana House of Representatives

Julien Mailland, Media School

MODERATOR:

Scott Shackelford, Kelley School of Business

NOVEMBER 30, 2017

5:30–6:45 PM

Media School, Franklin 312

Net Neutrality is one of the most important public policy issues of our time, and it was long before John Oliver helped bring it to popular attention in 2015. Under the Trump administration, the debate is again raging between industry lobby groups, public interest groups, and politicians, on battlefields that include the White House, Congress, the Federal Communications Commission, and the federal courts. The outcome of these battles will determine the boundaries of our freedom to speak, innovate, and participate in public and democratic life online for a generation to come. But, what is “net neutrality”? The panel will open the black box and shed light on this issue from cross-disciplinary angles that include computer science, law and economics, and telecommunications, and discuss recent developments in the United States, Canada, and the European Union.

This presentation is open to the public, and will be live streamed at <https://www.facebook.com/IUMediaSchool/>

Cosponsors: Cybersecurity Program, Media School, & Ostrom Workshop Program on Cybersecurity and Internet Governance

