

CYBERSECURITY AND INFORMATION GOVERNANCE Reading Group

Cookies and Hard Problems

TUESDAY, APRIL 3, 2018

4:00 PM

OSTROM WORKSHOP, 513 N. PARK

This second reading group session will focus on “Data, Justice, and AI: There May Not be a Human Deciding Your Case,” led by Professor Angie Raymond. In advance of the session, please read the following: (1) “Technology, Ethics, and Access to Justice: Should an Algorithm be Deciding Your Case?,” Raymond & Shackelford, 2014; and (2) “Robot Judges Could Soon be Helping with Court Cases,” The Independent, Oct. 24, 2016.

Faculty and students interested in cybersecurity and/or information governance are welcome to join in this informal gathering.

Zoom available at: <https://iu.zoom.us/j/418101779>

Angie Raymond is a business law and ethics professor at IU's Kelley School of Business and Director of the Ostrom Workshop Program on Data Management and Information Governance.

Coffee and cookies will be served. For questions, contact Angie Raymond (angraymo@indiana.edu).
