Colloquium and Research Lecture Series Continue

virtually on Zoom for Fall 2020

Our Fall 2020 Colloquium Series scheduled through the end of 2020 and beyond will have some important changes.

A few important changes are coming to the format of our Colloquium Series. First, beginning with our November 9 colloquium, we will begin leaving the Zoom room open for 30 minutes after the colloquium ends for a period of post-talk conversation to enable more informal communications and brainstorming. Second, we will provide the option to schedule one-on-one meetings with the Colloquium speakers, either privately or with small groups, on the day of their presentations. Third, we are encouraging students (Ostrom Fellows and Research Awardees in particular) to help kick off our discussions by asking the first question in an effort to ensure everyone has a chance to engage. Please see the schedule for the remainder of the year below.

As always, the Colloquium Series, Research Series, Tocqueville Lecture Series, and other special events as well as our podcasts are available for viewing any time on our YouTube Channel.
